Baby found abandoned

A baby was found on a street corner in Sheepshead Bay Sunday night, police said.

The 911 call came in at 11:30 p.m., police said, reporting a baby alone in a stroller on the corner of East 9th Street and Avenue V.

Responding officers discovered a one-month-old baby without a parent in sight.

Emergency medical personnel took the baby to Coney Island Hospital for observation, police said. The baby's mother was later discovered apparently intoxicated, police said.

Resonates. He hit a raw nerve when he tweeted a couple feuding on his roof.

New York City comedian Kyle Ayers witnessed a breakup on Saturday night — and then, so did the rest of the Internet, when he opted to live-tweet it.

Ayers was hanging out on his roof, "just trying to enjoy the view," when a couple came out and started fighting.

The tiff appeared to be prompted by the woman's desire to move in together. The man did not share that desire.

"Yeah but what is, like, living together? Like what's an apartment mean? You know what I'm saying?" -guy #roofbreakup," Ayers tweeted.

As with any lovers' quarrel, however, the spat grew to encompass many apparent issues in the relationship, from roommate tension to suspicious text messages, character attacks and the rehashing of past disputes.

Some have accused Ayers of insensitivity or privacy invasion, but he didn't seem so detached or callous about what he witnessed.

"I'm a comedian, and overheard something I thought was funny, so I threw it to my (at the time) small audience."

Cohabitation

"Yeah but what is, like, living together? Like what's an apartment mean? You know what I'm saying?" -guy

Ayers wrote in an email.

Since the live tweet, his Twitter followers have grown from a few hundred to more than 16,000.

Ayers said he didn't expect the live tweet to be so popular.

"I just want to make people laugh," he wrote in an email. "And an overwhelming majority of my feedback has been people laughing, happy or thanking me for making their day better."

Mevoli died around 2 p.m. after completing a dive off the coast of Long Island in the Bahamas.

A statement from the Association Internationale pour le Développement de l'Apnée (AIDA), an international organization for freediving, explained Mevoli made it back to the surface after a dive 72 meters deep, but lost consciousness.

Detectives in the Bahamas are reportedly investigating his death.

Reverend Billy could face jail time for protest

Big splash. The activist could spend up to a year in jail for Chase Bank stunt.

Environmental activist Bill Talen, more commonly known as Reverend Billy, could face up to a year in prison for organizing a musical protest that brought activists to a Manhattan JPMorgan Chase bank last month.

The protesters, all members of Talen's Stop Shopping Choir, went up to the bank's third floor where the wealth management offices for private clients are located and burst into song. They handed out sheets about the impact of Chase investments on the environment while Talen gave a sermon about climate change.

Talen and the choir's music director, Nehemiah Luckett, were arrested moments later.

Last week they were charged with riot in the second degree, menacing in the third degree, unlawful assembly and two counts of disorderly conduct — charges that carry up to a year in prison.

Talen told Grist.org that he was aware the trial would be an uphill battle.

"I think that we're in dicey territory here because JPMorgan Chase is basically the government of New York," he said.

Chris Christie would defeat Andrew Cuomo in New York in a presidential race, a poll shows. / GETTY IMAGES

Poll: Christie wins NY against Cuomo in 2016

Red. Democrats would lose New York in a Christie-Cuomo 2016 matchup, a new poll suggests.

The Empire State, normally a shoo-in for national Democrats, would go red if Govs. Chris Christie and Andrew Cuomo faced off in the 2016 presidential race, a poll suggests.

The New Jersey governor would defeat Cuomo in his home state 47 to 42 percent, according to a Siena College poll of 806 registered voters in New York state released Monday.

"Despite 'home-court advantage' and a 2-to-1 Democratic enrollment advantage, Christie is besting Cuomo by five points," Siena College pollster Steven Greenberg said.

Among city voters, Cuomo leads Christie 55 to 36 percent, but this "is not enough to offset Christie's comparable upstate and suburban leads," Greenberg said.

The poll has a margin of error plus or minus 3.5 percentage points.

"New Yorkers might like to poke fun at their Garden State neighbors ... but voters here like Chris Christie, the recently re-elected Republican governor."

Supreme Court

Justices won't review intelligence court action on phone records

The U.S. Supreme Court said on Monday it would not review a ruling by the secretive intelligence court that gave the government access to records kept by Verizon Communications Inc on millions of telephone calls.

The long-shot case was brought to the high court by the Electronic Privacy Information Center, a public interest research organization. It was the first time the high-profile issue has come before the justices since former National Security Agency contractor Edward Snowden began in June to leak secret documents detailing American surveillance programs.

Safe havens. Survivors of the storm said they rode it out in their basements.

Some residents of Washington, Ill., picked through the remains of their tornado-flattened homes on Monday, recovering what they could a day after a series of twisters pounded the Midwest, killing eight people.

Bits of American flags and insulation from destroyed houses clung to trees that had been stripped of most of their branches and remaining leaves by the Washington twister. Six people died in Illinois in storm-related accidents, and Michigan officials on Monday reported two new deaths.

Police were keeping residents from returning to the storm-hit area, where buildings were destroyed and cars turned upside down, out of concern that people could be injured while attempting to retrieve possessions.

Ryan Bowers, 33, and his wife Andrea, 32, briefly returned to retrieve a family Bible and pink baby rattle that was their 2-1/2-year-old daughter Sydney's favorite toy.

US appeals court revives Apple bid for Samsung injunction

A U.S. appeals court on Monday breathed new life into Apple's long-running attempt to secure an injunction banning the sale of some devices made by Samsung Electronics Co. Ltd., ordering a California judge to reconsider imposing a permanent sales ban on some Samsung products.

Apple has been incensed by what it considers Android knockoffs of its devices, many made by Samsung. The two companies have been in a long-running and global battle over patent infringement.

The U.S. Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit said on Monday that the lower court abused its discretion in denying Apple's request for an injunction of Samsung devices with respect to utility patents and asked it to reconsider. REUTERS

Sites. Google, Microsoft block online searches for child pornography

Web search giants Google and Microsoft said on Monday they will block online searches for child abuse images.

The world's two largest search engine operators, in a rare display of unity, said as many as 100,000 search terms will now fail to produce results and trigger warnings that child abuse imagery is illegal.

The child porn crackdown announced during an Internet safety summit in London came after Prime Minister David Cameron in July urged Internet firms to do more to stop access to illegal images in the wake of two child sex murders in Britain.

Cameron said Britain's newly-established National Crime Agency is joining forces with the United States' FBI in a task force to track down these pedophiles and arrest them.

He described the progress to block illegal content as "significant" but said more needed to be done to track down pedophiles using the so-called "dark Web" of encrypted networks that lets people anonymously share images of child abuse. REUTERS

'Fifty Shades' tests positive for cocaine, herpes

Book 'em.

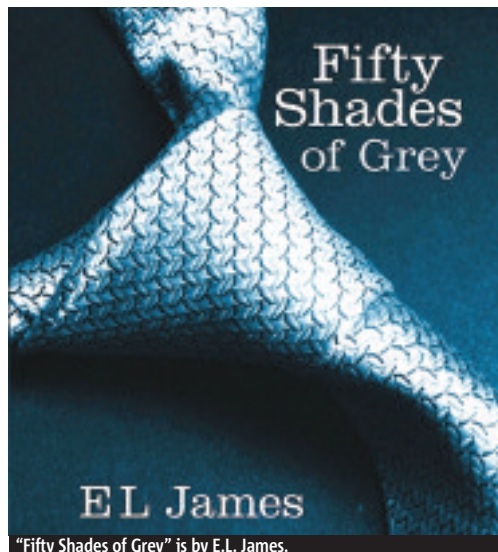

Researchers found STDs and drugs on a library copy.

Housewives' favorite guilty pleasure may come at a price, as Belgian researchers detected traces of drugs and sexually transmitted diseases in a copy of the popular book at the Antwerp library. Toxicology professor Jan Tytgat from the Catholic University of Leuven, who ran chemical tests on the 10 most-borrowed books, said most of us should not worry.

Why were you doing this?

We were approached by a TV production house, who were curious to know if there was evidence of micro-organisms or psychotropic substances in public libraries. It made me think, because we know there is cocaine on every U.S. $100 bill, and even on the surface of rivers, so it could have been a risk on children's books.

So we should stay away from books?

"Fifty Shades of Grey" is by E.L. James.

The message is very much that it's still good to go to libraries. There is 100 percent evidence for cocaine but of no toxicological consequence, and the same for the bacteria — there is no danger.

But why is it there?

Hygiene is one reason, if people don't take care. Also, where books are stored can expose them to contamination.

Is there much variety across the books? Surely the Bible is clean?

The level in children's books was similar to erotic thrillers — it would have been nice to test the Bible but we didn't.

Aquino 'tempted to despair' at typhoon's toll

Philippines. Almost 4,000 people have lost their lives to Typhoon Haiyan.

The United Nations expressed fear on Monday that some Philippine islands hit by a giant typhoon have not been reached 10 days after disaster struck, and President Benigno Aquino said the scale of suffering "tempted him to despair."

Authorities estimate more than 3,900 people were killed when Typhoon Haiyan, one of the largest ever recorded, made landfall in the central Philippines and the sea surged ashore.

Philippine authorities, the U.S. military and international agencies face a mounting humanitarian crisis, with the number of people displaced by the catastrophe estimated at 4 million, up from 900,000 late last week.

Bernard Kerblat, U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees representative for the Philippines, said the agency was still facing coordination problems and bottlenecks.

"As of now, personally, I am not so sure that we've reached every single portion of the territory where people are in need of aid," he said.

Russia seeks clues over plane crash that killed 50

Russian investigators sifted through the charred remains of a Boeing 737-500 airliner on Monday in the search for clues about what caused it to crash in a nosedive and burst into flames, killing all 50 people on board.

Sunday's crash raised new concerns about Russia's poor safety record as it prepares to host the Winter Olympics in the southern city of Sochi in February, an event on which President Vladimir Putin has staked much personal political prestige.

Residents of Kazan wiped away tears as they lay flowers at the airport where the plane crashed in windy weather. Flags flew at half mast in the city 500 miles east of Moscow. REUTERS

FOUR WAYS TO START SAVING FOR NEXT YEAR'S VACATION

This is a great time to start planning ahead for what you want to do in 2014, especially if you anticipate a year-end bonus or any holiday money. It's not just what you save but how you save. Here are four ways to optimize your saving habits and make that dream vacation a reality.

2 Embrace risk: There's such a thing as considered risk. If your travel date is a couple of years away, consider depositing your funds into an investment account rather than a savings account. It's possible to grow your money while taking an acceptable amount of risk.

By following a few simple money rules, you'll be able to enjoy your vacation without the stress of worrying about how much it cost to get you there. / GETTY IMAGES, WAVEBREAK MEDIA

3 Be specific: Rather than setting restrictive limits on yourself like "spend less on restaurants," try to visualize yourself on vacation. Research shows the more you see yourself achieving the goal, the more likely you are to get there.

4 Make saving automatic: Automating

Tip No. 1

Strategize

Think ahead to when you will get the most out of a big trip — like during the summer — and when you are most likely to start saving. It may be after receiving a bonus, holiday cash or during tax-refund season. Plan your timeline accordingly.

deposits into your savings or investment fund keeps you on track. It helps you stick to the plan no matter what happens.

Money matters. Survive the holidays without going broke

It may be the most wonderful time of the year, but it's also the most expensive. With a few tips, you can still get everyone on your list something special. Brad Hines, productivity consultant and founder of HungryKids.org, shares his tips.

Shop with a list and budget in mind. Retailers are well aware of their ability to create a holiday shopping frenzy. By knowing exactly what you are going to buy in advance, you avoid being sucked into buying more than you budgeted for.

Set expectations. Setting a limit of the number of gifts each family member receives not only helps save, but also is a reminder of what the season is all about.

Give experiences. Sign up for sites like Groupon, LivingSocial and other daily deal sites not just in your city, but in cities where your loved ones live. Not only will you be giving a unique gift, you'll also save money by getting it at a steeply discounted rate.

Look for discounts. Before you head out to shop, Google the item you plan on buying and "coupon." Many times there is a discount code or printable coupon that can save you 15 to 20 percent.

Did you have SHINGLES? Still in PAIN?

Do you experience:

- ☐ pain that is sharp, jabbing, or burning
- ☐ itching or numbness near the shingles area
- ☐ skin sensitivity ☐ loss of sleep due to the pain

If it has been 9 months or more since the skin rash appeared and you are still in pain, you may be suffering from Postherpetic Neuralgia or PHN. PHN occurs as a result of damage to the nerves during a shingles outbreak. If you are between 18-80 years old, you may be eligible to participate in our research study, which includes investigational medication for PHN pain, at no cost to you. DOUGLAS COUPLAND

Douglas Coupland is a Canadian writer, artist and designer. His first novel was 1991's "Generation X: Tales for an Accelerated Culture." His novella, "Temp," of which this is the 11th installment, will be running online and in the pages of your daily Metro each weekday through Nov. 29.

Day 12: Temp witnesses the class divide firsthand

Had there not been stab wounds and vomit everywhere, the hospital lineup could have been fun in a tailgate party kind of way. Our surprise neighbor was Darren, the vet I'd given 20 bucks to after lunch. He was holding a T-shirt up to a wound on his forearm.

"What happened?"

"I got into a fight with a raccoon over half a bucket of KFC I found beside the check-cashing mart."

"Who won?"

"He did."

"Here, have a stick of gum. I am nothing if not fresh."

Danimal was being a downer. "How hard can it be to get some painkillers?"

"Dan, there are many people here in far worse shape than you. Keep it down."

Darren advised, "If you're looking to score painkillers, man, don't overplay it."

"But I'm in genuine pain."

"Sure, sure. Half the people in this lineup are here just to score some Oxy, but if you overdo it, they'll just tell you to scram."

Dan is practical. "What do I need to know?"

"Tell them your pain is about 8 on a scale of 1 to 10. It hurts, but you've felt worse. And don't scream or make moaning sounds. It irritates them and they're relieved when they don't have to watch someone aiming for an Oscar."

"Good to know."

"And now we stand and wait."

And wait we did. About two hours in Dan asked, "Shannon, have you been here before?"

"No. But I did break my arm roller-blading in Boston four years ago — go Red Sox! Cost me $19,000, and I'll be in debt until I'm 40. It's why I can't do what I really want to do in life. But I do have a Saint Eustace loyalty card you can borrow if you want."

"Was the emergency area as crowded as this four years ago?"

"Worse. There was a full moon that night."

Finally, it was our turn. Once we hit the front, Dan took a step and something inside him went sideways — he bellowed like a pirate, scaring even me.

"Sir!" said the intake nurse, "This is a hospital. I'll politely ask you to lower your voice."

"My stomach — God, it's like a tractor's driving over it."

"You're in a great deal of pain, are you?"

"Yes. Some idiot

slugged me in the sternum."

"Where did this happen?"

"In a bar."

It didn't take a genius to see Dan was making a bad impression.

"How would you describe your pain, sir?"

"About 8 on a scale of 1 to 10."

The nurse buzzed a security guard. "You're the 10th person tonight to describe your pain that exact same way. I'm afraid I can't help you in your quest for pills, sir. Next!"

Out on the street, Darren commiserated. "Sorry dude. Take two of mine."

Dan grabbed them and chewed them like Mentos. Then he collapsed.

hey Toronto mayor, looks like you have two crack problems.

Thank you, readers, for keeping Metro on top

Still No. 1. Metro confirmed as the most-read free daily newspaper in New York City.

Metro New York is still the No. 1 most-read free daily newspaper in New York, according to recent industry figures by the independent market research company Scarborough.

Scarborough reported that Metro reached a whopping 1,509,438 readers over the age of 18 every week in print and online. That's a record high, 128,561 more than its free daily competitor.

"While our print readership remains strong, these figures reflect our increased focus on growing our online presence with the re-launch of www.metro.us website," says Yggers Mortensen, Metro US publisher and CEO. "Metro is no longer solely a newspaper; it is growing into a full-fledged news media company."

Indeed, Metro's online readership continues to explode since the launch of its new website in February. Metro.us has grown to new heights, with nearly one million unique visitors per month.

Meanwhile, The Daily News and the New York Post had their worst print readership figures — in just one year, The New 48,400 Metro readers plan to get married according to the 2013 Scarborough report.

York Post lost 1 in 5 daily readers and The Daily News lost 1 in 8 print readers. Today, Metro reaches more adults aged 18 and over living in Manhattan than The Post or The Daily News.

"The traditional newspaper model, which relies on consumers to buy it, is broken," says Mortensen. "Metro's controlled distribution model and free, quality content seems unaffected by the fast-changing media environment."

With 30 percent of Metro readers aged 18 to 34 and 73 percent of Metro readers aged 21 to 54, Metro is the newspaper with the youngest profile in town. Metro also proves to be particularly popular with women, who make up 54 percent of our readers. Parents are also fond of Metro, with 32 percent of readers having children at home. METRO

Which Taylor Swift ex is driven crazy by her songs?

It's pretty common knowledge that Taylor Swift's syrupy love songs and scorching breakup anthems are about her real, and often famous, boyfriends — such common knowledge, in fact, that playing "guess the ex" for each new Swift single is a beloved pastime for all upstanding Americans. But what do the exes in question think about having their romances immortalized in song? At least one is cool with it and at least one is, well, not.

"I heard from the guy that most of 'Red' is about," Taylor Swift told New York Magazine. "He was like, 'I just listened to the album, and that was a really bittersweet experience for me. It was like going through a photo album.' That was nice. Nicer than, like, the ranting, crazy emails I got from this one dude. It's a lot more mature way of looking at a love that was wonderful until it was terrible, and both people got hurt from it — but one of those people happened to be a songwriter."

And it's time to play our favorite game! Who's the mature ex and who's the crazy ex? Jake Gyllenhaal seems like he'd be a grown-up about things, and much of Swift's album "Red" is rumored to be about him. As for the mad emailer, I'd say that sounds like John Mayer's style, but in that case, both parties would be songwriters, not just one. Unless "one of those people happened to be a songwriter" is a subtle dig at Mayer's musical chops? Man, I love this game!

Cannon impostor steals jewelry

An unidentified man has made off with stolen jewels just by dropping Cannon's name. / ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

To be a jewel thief, I figured you had to do some "Ocean's Eleven"-type caper. But no. The dream team of George Clooney, Brad Pitt and Matt Damon is not needed. You only need to pretend you are Nick Cannon. Say what?

An unidentified man has reportedly made off with thousands of dollars in stolen jewels just by dropping Nick Cannon's name, according to TMZ. The thief, who called himself "Michael," called retailer Fred Segal claiming that Cannon needed some jewels for his wife, Mariah Carey, and asked that they be delivered to the Roosevelt Hotel in Hollywood. A woman from the store obliged, handing the bounty off to a man who appeared to be a security guard who said he would return with cash for the jewels. And because we are all smarter than that sales clerk, we know how this story ends — "Michael" never came back.

So either Fred Segal has been taken or Nick Cannon has a pretty inexpensive way of getting his wife gifts.

Asa Soltan Rahmati is a busy woman. Her reality show "Shahs of Sunset" — which airs Tuesdays at 10 p.m. on Bravo — just returned for a third season, but filming isn't the only thing the self-proclaimed "Persian Princess" has been up to. Since we last saw her, Rahmati has launched a boutique alkaline water company and created a collection of artwork. Sure, Rahmati has her fair share of haters (including some of the fellow "Shahs" she calls friends) but, if you ask her, that doesn't stop her from getting what she wants.

Have the other "Shahs" been supportive of your new ventures?

No, there was definitely some hater-ation, and some naysayers talking s—. But you know what? I'm a survivor and everything I have, I have worked hard for. Diamond Water is my dream, nobody else has to believe in it except for me, so I don't care what other people say,

Where do you find inspiration for your art?

Art has always been a vehicle of therapy. I'm able to process the pain I went through living as a refugee in an immigrant ghetto in Germany. A lot of my work has to do with identity and living between cultures. Whether it's with my music or my visual art, there always seems to be some sort of Eastern/Western gangster flair to it. It's always been art, life and love, all melted together.

You're a self-proclaimed "Persian Pop Priestess." What's that about?

I learned at a young age that we have so much that makes us who we are. The main things are love and humanity, but mainly love. I kind of became a spiritual gangster really early on. Love by all means necessary. Not in that weird hippie way, but in a true, primal way.

You and GG made amends in the first episode. Do you think her apology was genuine?

I think that last season was really hard for her. I think that she learned consequences. People don't think she has changed, but she and I are in a really good place and I see her like a little sister. I'm really big on giving people second chances and forgiving people when they truly know what went down.

The rift between Lilly and MJ seems to be messing with the group's dynamic. MJ's my girl. In our culture, depending on how tight you are, it's not OK to invite someone to a party and then not allow them to come. Lilly always feels the need to point out that she has class. The right thing to do would have been to let her come.

ASA SOLTAN RAHMATI

The "Shahs of Sunset" star tries to stay above all the drama — but it isn't always easy.

'SPIRITUAL GANGSTER'

Homecoming

What's one moment this season that meant a lot to you?

[My art project] was a personal piece for me and propelled me to organize a family reunion in Turkey with my family that's still in Iran. I haven't been able to see them for 30 years.

An Epic debut for Yo Gotti

Hip-hop. Memphis rapper talks new album and historic performances.

Yo Gotti played the historic Orpheum in Memphis in June. It was the theater's first hip-hop show.

"That was a very special moment for me to play at the venue, knowing the history," says the Memphis native who is also known as Mario Mims. "It was a very big deal to me, and on top of it, we sold it out."

The show was also an example of Yo Gotti's DIY attitude.

"I booked the theater myself because it was my birthday and I do something big in the city every time," he says. "Everybody was like, 'They don't do rap there' and they don't do this and they don't do that. I have the type of attitude where if I'm trying to achieve something, I don't believe in not trying. It took a lot of work but we got it done."

Yo Gotti does indeed get it done. He's about to embark on a new chapter in his career, as an Epic

Starting out on the north side of Memphis, Yo Gotti began his career selling mixtapes on Beale Street. In the last 10 years, he's released numerous mixtapes and albums on TVT Records and RCA. His biggest hit to date is the 2009 single "Women Lie, Men Lie," which featured Lil Wayne.

He says it's all about bringing that little touch of the Memphis streets. "I find a lot of my inspiration comes from the culture I come from, a lot of struggle and pain. I think being from Memphis puts a lot of soul in my music."

This week's new must-read books

The holidays are approaching. Save money by staying in with one of these new releases. EMILY LAURANCE

"Let Me Off at the Top! My Classy Life & Other Musings"

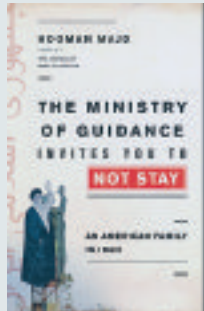

By Ron Burgundy

"Anchorman" character Ron Burgundy released a classy new book today — and while it doesn't smell of rich mahogany, it does include plenty of personal anecdotes.

"Lady Catherine, the Earl, and the Real Downton Abbey"

By The Countess of Carnarvon

After her last book spent nearly a year on the New York Times best-seller list, the regal author is back, chronicling the true story of being a royal during wartime.

"The Ministry of Guidance Invites You Not to Stay: An American Family in Iran"

By Hooman Majd

Moving his family from Greenpoint, Brooklyn, to Iran proves to be quite the culture shock in this true story, written by Iranian-American journalist Hooman Majd.

J.J. Abrams: The director/producer is now a novelist Storytelling.

Abrams and novelist Doug Dorst reinvent the hardback.

When J.J. Abrams conceived the idea for "S," he knew there was only one way to tell the story — and it wasn't onscreen. There would be no special effects or big-name actors. Abrams felt that the only medium that would work was a good old-fashioned book.

"It all started in LAX when J.J. found a paperback book," co-author Doug Dorst tells Metro. "Someone had written a note to whoever was going to find it." The note got the gears in Abrams' brain turning, and he came up with the idea of telling a story within a story.

"S." is not your typical book. The pages look old and worn, with scribbles all over the margins. There are inserts of photos, postcards and letters tucked into the pages. It's presented as a novel called "Ship of Theseus" written by V.M. Straka. But the notes and inserts tell another story, between a female college senior and a male graduate student who pass the book back and forth, leaving notes to each other.

Since writing a novel is a bit different from writing a script and Abrams was, you know, busy, he enlisted the help of acclaimed writer Dorst. "We spent the better part of a year talking about the characters and why they would pass the book back and forth to each other," Dorst says. "Abrams told me, 'Go, run with it.'" Dorst would pass each chapter off to Abrams, who would then weigh in.

"It's not the type of call you get every day," Dorst, inserted, says about getting the offer to work with J.J. Abrams, who conceived the idea for his new novel after finding a left-behind paperback at LAX.

Local reading

Lena Dunham will be hosting a reading with Abrams and Dorst at Symphony Space November 23 at 6 p.m. Buy tickets at SymphonySpace.org.

Despite not having everything figured out, Abrams and Dorst were on the same page (metaphorically speaking) the entire time. Though Abrams is familiar with screenwriting, where everything is mapped out beforehand, he adapted to the novel-writing process, letting the story unfold as it was being written.

So, are Abrams and Dorst hoping their book will inspire people to forgo their Kindles and go back to buying hardbacks? "I just want people to read!" Dorst laments. "I don't think one form has to win out over the other."

Why 2013 is just like 1963: Is Obama next?

According to "Dallas 1963" authors Bill Minutaglio and Steven Davis, President Barack Obama should watch his back. They say the political climate today mirrors what was happening in Dallas the year Kennedy was assassinated.

"People criticized Kennedy for founding Medicare in 1963 the same way President Obama is criticized today for Obamacare," Davis tells Metro.

With Obama's approval rating down to 39 percent — a new low for the president — the country's sentiment is similar to what it was in the early 1960s. Kennedy is so revered today that people often forget how unpopular he was at the time. "Dallas 1963" really brings readers back to this time period, in the city where Kennedy's most influential opponents lived.

Remembering JFK. The authors of "Dallas 1963" explain why another presidential assassination isn't unlikely.

"We wrote the book to take people back to this time and show how controversial JFK was," Davis says. "People were saying his presidency was the end of America as we know it and that Kennedy was a socialist. It's really the same things you hear about Obama today."

The 50th anniversary of JFK's death is not only a time to reflect on what has happened, but also to prevent history from repeating.

Paul Labrecque Restorative Mineral Massage

Minerals aren't just for Hank on "Breaking Bad" (hope you laughed at that sad attempt at humor).

The Paul Labrecque mineral massage is a full-body rubdown designed for everyone from pro-athletes to tired moms — anyone who needs a little relief from putting themselves into overdrive. It incorporates magnesium — one of the body's most important minerals for fighting inflammation and soreness — in its massage gel cream. The all-natural cream is absorbed through the skin into the blood stream, which our therapist told us is the best way to get the mineral. You'll leave with relaxed joints and muscles (great for increasing flexibility), so you can kick butt on the field or in the boardroom.

The treatment is available in 60-minute ($145) and 90-minute ($175) sessions.

Dermalogica BioActive Peel

After finding myself in my 30s with a baby (and the hormone spots and sullen skin that go along with said bundle of joy), I realized I needed to bring in the big guns. I needed a peel.

But peels are scary, right? Dermalogica's newest service boasts the benefits of a peel — it fades hyperpigmentation, helps to clear acneic inflammation as well as refreshen skin — but with no post-treatment redness.

It's quick, it kind of stings, but the slight discomfort (and $150 price tag) is worth it. I had very little peeling or redness. Four days later, my skin looked clear and healthy; the benefits are much more noticeable than a regular facial.

Ways to cook with your kids this fall

Family time. Chef Marcus Samuelsson shares his tips on getting the whole family involved in the kitchen.

Trying to get all the holiday baking and cooking done may make you want to banish your kids from the kitchen, but letting them help can turn out to be a fun way for you to spend time together. Chef Marcus Samuelsson, owner of Red Rooster Harlem, Ginny's Supper Club and Uptown Brasserie, has been cooking with kids quite a bit lately.

Samuelsson is teaming up with Uncle Ben's to get more kids in the kitchen. / COURTESY OF UNCLE BEN'S

The chef teamed up with Uncle Ben's to support Ben's Beginners Cooking Contest, giving families opportunities to win cash prizes. Here, he shares his tips with Metro how to cook with your kids — stress free!

1 Start early. An early start means they'll be more familiar with different methods for preparing food and the endless ways ingredients can be used. It's the first step to helping children understand nutrition and to get them thinking about what they're eating.

2 Get those hands dirty. Cooking isn't about standing on the sidelines. Try cooking dishes your kids are familiar with together that also have room for a little creativity, such as tacos. Between preparing the different vegetables, rice and other ingredients, it offers the opportunity to explore different flavors and textures.

3 Let your kids take ownership. For younger kids, let them be in charge of getting the ingredients out of the refrigerator. If they're older, maybe they can be in charge of preparing a whole dish by themselves. Either way, your child will take pride in what he or she accomplishes in the kitchen.

4 Make it a family affair. My earliest memories of cooking include spending time with my grandmother in the kitchen. I'll never forget those memories and encourage all families to get in the kitchen together and get cooking. What's made is so much more than a great meal.

Have a kid-friendly Thanksgiving

Hosting help.

Celebrity caterer Andrea Correale shares her tips for making the kids' table the place to be.

For everyone who just shows up at mealtime ready to chow down, Thanksgiving is a relaxing Thursday off from work. But for those of us whose job it is to prepare the food and entertain, it can be pretty stressful. Metro spoke with Andrea Correale, celebrity caterer and Lenox Home Entertaining expert, for her tips.

1 Make the table feel special. I like to make gingerbread turkeys with each child's name, but using name cards is great, too. Another way to make the table fun is to use paper as the tablecloth so kids can draw on it.

2 Give traditional Thanksgiving food a kiddie spin. Mini turkey pot pies, corn dog lollipops and sweet potato fries are all festive foods that kids love. And the great news is that all of this can be made in advance and heated up later.

3 Do as much as you can ahead of time. Make everything you can the day before and don't underestimate the power of asking for help — you'd be surprised at how much people would love to bring a dish!

Horoscope

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23-Nov. 21. Opportunity knocks, and the chance to put your skills to work will result in rewards.

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22-Dec. 21. Look at what's happening around you, but think twice before you leap into action. Stick close to home and focus on personal options, not changing others.

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22-Jan. 20. Don't feel obligated to pay for others' mistakes. Put more into your own work and take care of financial interests that will improve your position.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21-Feb. 18. Listen, but don't agree to do what everyone else wants. Make a required decision based on your emotional needs.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19-March 20. You may face emotional interference if you share too many of your ideas and intentions with others. Be discreet.

♈ Aries | March 21-April 20. You may feel the need to address issues that are bothering you, but be prepared to deal with disapproval. Someone will meddle in your affairs.

♉ Taurus | April 21-May 21. Do your research and base any decision on facts and figures. Someone with a vested interest is likely to use emotional blackmail.

♊ Gemini | May 22-June 20. A challenge is best left alone. Minor mishaps or injury will occur if you aren't cautious. Realize your potential.

♋ Cancer | June 21-July 22. Leap into action. There is much you can accomplish if you put your mind to it. Getting involved in activities that promote your skills will lead to an unusual proposal.

♌ Leo | July 23-Aug. 22. Explore areas of interest. Don't feel you have to take care of someone else's concerns. Let your desires dictate what you do.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23-Oct. 22. Check out different cultures and philosophies. You will get peace of mind knowing you are on the right track.

Poor taste in turn of phrase

Re: 'Pretty actors going dirty' (Metro, Nov. 18) In regards to Mr. Matt Prigge's review, I concur "poverty porn" is an awful term. This term establishes poverty as a joke that only "other" people are hindered by.

Give more time for teaching

Maybe education reform in this country is the right move at the right time, but with the wrong thrust. I wonder what would happen if we took the tasks of creating, administering and correcting of tests and gave those responsibilities to the administrators? That would leave more time for the teachers to ... teach! And the administrators would have something that they would be accountable for!

Smith struggles similar to Sanchez's as a rookie

NFL. The Jets plan on sticking with the rookie coming off the worst game of his young career.

The Jets have been here before — and not long ago.

They have a rookie quarterback and a team mired in mediocrity in the middle of the season, not unlike four seasons ago. But back in 2009, the Jets ended up rebounding by season's end. The formula might not be quite so simple for the Jets this season, who must regroup after Sunday's 37-14 loss at the Bills and another disastrous showing from their rookie quarterback.

Through 10 games, Geno Smith is near the bottom of most NFL passer ratings. He is looking every bit the part of a quarterback who dropped to the middle of the second round of this past April's NFL Draft based off serious question marks on accuracy and his ability to read defenses. Smith was just 8-of-23 for 103 yards with three interceptions against the Bills.

Smith emerged on shaky ground Monday, but will remain the starting quarterback, according to head coach Rex Ryan.

"[I] didn't play well — had positives, had negatives. More negatives than positives, but just didn't play well," Smith said on Monday after reviewing

Geno Smith spent much of the fourth quarter on the bench Sunday while Matt Simms drove the team for a late touchdown. / GETTY IMAGES

By the numbers

Mark Sanchez and Geno Smith have both struggled through the first 10 games of their career.

- Mark Sanchez
 138-of-265 (52 percent)
 1,791 yards
 10 touchdowns
 16 interceptions
 4-6 record
- Geno Smith
 166-of-285 (58 percent)
 2,100 yards
 8 touchdowns
 16 interceptions
 5-5 record

the game film from the Bills.

Ball security is a major issue now for the Jets, especially with Smith's 20 turnovers this year. He has four fumbles lost in addition to 16 interceptions.

Smith has had multiple interceptions in a game six times this season. The Jets are 1-5 in those games.

Veteran quarterback David Garrard, brought in to mentor Smith, is impressed with the rookie's resilience and said "he continues to come in humble." A meek spirit isn't enough to keep the Jets in postseason contention.

day as I've always done and just working hard and trying to progress and get better day by day."

This scenario is lining up eerily like the 2009 season with rookie quarterback Mark Sanchez under center. Sanchez was anointed as the Week 1 starter and Ryan never yanked Sanchez over his lackluster performances, instead riding the rookie through a rough start to the season. The Jets would make the playoffs and a run to the AFC Championship game.

The Jets are hoping lightning strikes twice.

Ryan showed patience then and appears to be doing the same thing with Smith, who perhaps isn't as polished as Sanchez when he was a rookie. He's not talking about a quarterback controversy, even as Simms entered the game in the fourth quarter on Sunday and led the offense to a touchdown on his first drive.

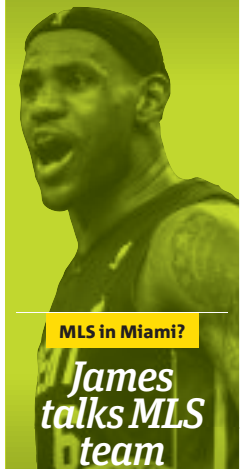

"I don't, honestly, that's up to the coaches," Smith said. "I go out there and perform the best that I can and I leave that in the hands of the coaches."

Giants expecting 'dogfight' when they meet Cowboys

NFL. A win on Sunday will have the Giants tied for second place in the NFC East.

Four weeks ago, it didn't look like the Giants would have any meaningful games the rest of the season. Now they are getting ready for two back-to-back.

The Giants face the Cowboys this weekend — and the Eagles the following week — with a legitimate chance at still contending for the NFC East division. The Eagles are in first place at 6-5, while the Cowboys are 5-5 and the Giants are one game back at 4-6.

The focus for now is squarely on the Cowboys, and no one on the Giants needs to be told how im-

Jon Beason, who had an interception and six total tackles on Sunday, has provided an important spark for the Giants since being acquired from Carolina. / GETTY IMAGES

Quoted

"It's going to be a fight. It's going to be a dogfight. There's going to be a lot of blood spilled out there."

Jason Pierre-Paul, Giants defensive end
Following the Packers game, referring to this weekend's NFC East rivalry game with the Cowboys portant the game is.

"This week, if you're looking for motivation for this week, something is wrong with you," linebacker Jon Beason said. "Those guys over there, they're talented every year. [Tony] Romo is a great quarterback. He can buy time with his legs, he makes unbelievable plays. It's a typical Giants-Cowboys matchup and you have to expect that. We're not looking for any extra motivation or motivations there."

With the Chiefs losing Sunday night, the Giants' win streak of four is now behind just Seattle and Carolina for the longest active streak in the league.

"We just weren't getting any bounces our way, whether it be the six turnovers that we had [in Week 1 against Dallas] or us not running the ball well and passing the ball good," running back Andre Brown said. "Now we just want to go out there and have a balanced offense so we can go out there and get a win."

Battered Nets

Kidd not concerned by injuries

If Jason Kidd was concerned about the potential of lengthy injuries for Deron Williams, Brook Lopez and Andrei Kirilenko, the Nets head coach was showing his poker face before Monday night's game.

"You got to go with the guys that can suit up, and that's the approach, that's all I can be concerned about," Kidd said. "Our health, in time, will get better, so with Brook and D-Will and A.K., hopefully they recover. They're younger so we'll see how that plays out."

Paul Pierce and Kevin Garnett, both of whom sat out a loss to end the road trip in Los Angeles, returned to the starting lineup last night against the Trail Blazers.

CLIENT TESTIMONIAL
 My name is Robert I came from Long Island to see Mr Shaman in Manhattan Because my friend told me about him, I was having problems with my wife, she wanted to divorce me, and didn't even wanted me to see my kids, she was also cheating on me with another guy,
 Mr Shaman brought her back to me in less than one day, Mr Shaman thanks for your help.
